This afternoon "Les Huguenots" will be repeated. The programme announced for pext week has been judicleusly amended by the withdrawal of "Don Giovanni" and the substitution of "Fidelio" and a ballet instead for Wednesday evening, the purpose being to gain time for the preparation of "L'Africaine." On Monday the opera will be Rossini's "William Tell."

A PIANOFORTE RECITAL

With the assistance of two of his pupils, Miss Myra A. Dilley and Miss Elanche Hersey, Mr. William H. Sherwood gave a pianoforte recital in Chickering Hall restorday afternoon. Mr. Sherwood began with Schumann's symphonic studies and ended with Tausig's arrangement of a military march by Schubert, but gave up a considerable portion of his programme to compositions by Edgar 8. Kelley. Two of these compositions were transcriptions for the planoforte of excerpts from the empty and bombastic music which My Kelley wrote while studying in Germany for the purpose of elucidating the meaning of Shakespeare's nguage in the tragedy of "Macbeth." The other compositions by Mr. Kelley were six songs grouped together under the title, "Phases of Love," and digni fied by a motto quoted from Burton. The songs were announced on the programme as being in manuscript and produced for the first time, notwithstanding that all but one or two of them were on the programmes of two concerts last season, to be sung by Mr. Max Heinrich and Miss Effle Stewart, of whom the latter sang them yesterday.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Field gave a dinner last night at their home, No. 123 East Twenty-first-st., in honor of Mr. Field's sixty-ninth birthday. Covers were laid for sixteen, the guests including the immediate members of the family. There were present Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Field, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Field, Mrs. Dudley Field, Mrs. Judson Field and the Messis. Field. David Dudley Field, the brother of Cyrus W. Field. was not present, as he is on his way to England to meet his daughter, Lady Musgrave, whose husband. Sir Anthony Musgrave, died in Van Dieman's Land recently. Lady Musgrave will make her home in London with her father, who has taken a house there.

MRS. SHERMAN'S WISH TO BE OBSERVED.

TO BE BURIED IN CAVALRY CEMETERY, ST. LOUIS-THE PALL-BEARERS.

8t. Louis, Nov. 30 (Special) .- While living in this city, Mrs. General Sherman expressed a wish to be buried in Calvary Cemetery, where the bodies of three

These pall-learers were all selected by General Sherman himself. General Pope spent three years at West Point with General Sherman, was with him after the Mexican war, and was one of his most Intimate friends during and since the Rebellion. General Noble was under Sherman in the Army of the Tennessee. General Menderson was associated with General Sherman during the early days of the war. Major Hitchcock marched with Sherman from Atlanta to Goldsboro, serving as his Judge-Advocate General, and it was by Major Hitchcock that the papers relating to the surrender of General Joseph Johnson, were drawn up. James A. Yeatman was an intimate friend of General Sherman before the war, and as the president of the Western Sanitary Commission, maintained close relations with him in his army until 1865. R. P. Tansey was General Sherman's next-door neighbor in St. Louis, and F. A. Drew and D.

R. Francis are well acquainted with the family. Archbishop Kenrick will be at the station to accompany the body to St. Navier's Church, where low mass will be held; and from there to Calvary Cemetery, where the burial will take place. The members of the Sherman family who are expected to be present, are: General W. T. Sherman, Thomas Ewing Sherman, 5. J., Phillips Tecumseh Sherman, Miss Elizabeth Fwing Sherman, Mrs. Ellen Sherman Thackara, Miss Rachel Ewing Sherman and General Thomas Ewing. MES. EDISON'S DANGEROUS RIDE.

HER HORSE RAN A MILE AT A TERRIBLE SPEED,

BUT SHE IS NOT PRIGHTENED. Mrs. Thomas A. Edison met with what threatened be a serious runaway accident in Orange, N. J., on Wednesday morning. At about 7 o'clock she started to ride home, when her team was run into by a careless horseback ridor. The team, in jumping to one side, broke the pole of the carriage short off. It fell on the heels of the horses and they broke into a dead run, dashing down Main st. man was able to guide them safely until St. Mark's Church was reached, when the team ran against the carriage of Charles W. Judd, of Eagle Rock, upsetting the latter and throwing both occupants

The Edison carriage thundered along up Pleasant-ave., when the horses were checked by the steep ascent of the mountain, having run over a mile. Besides the coachman, Mrs. Edison had in the carriage with her a lady friend and her child. Mrs. Edison was not at all agitated by the fearful peril she had been in.

MR. BLAINE ENDS HIS BEIEF VISIT. James G. Blaine left the city last night for Boston 11 o'clock train. He spent the greater part of the evening at Colonel Coppinger's. Ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, Levi P. Morton and Senator Hiscock were among the callers on Mr. Biaine during the day. Yesterday afternoon a committee waited on Mr. Blaine and invited him to attend the dinner at the Metropolitan Hotel tonight, but Mr. Blaine said that he had only come to town to attend the funeral of a relative and was anxious to get back home again. Just as Mr. Blaine was leaving town Senator George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, and John C. New, of the Republican National Committee, reached the Fifth Avenue Hotel. They did not see Mr. Blaine.

put to practical use. The weighing machine was one of the first contrivances to which the invention was in its day, the original automatic weighing machine is now entirely out of date. The most recent invention in that line not only weighs one accurately, but discourses music the while, and even hands out to the "weighee" a card bearing the record of the affair, including both weight and date. There are several of these machines in uptown resorts, and they are extensively patronized by people who cannot be happy unless they know at stated intervals just how much they have gained or lost in weight. Many persons preserve the cards and thus have a ready means of every winter," said the flower-girl in an up-town hotel, as she deftly fashioned a fragrant button-hole bouquet, consisting of a carnation, a violet and a rose, with just a spray of fern, and handed it over to a customer for the insignificant sum of twenty-five cents. "Fewer flowers are worn," she continued, but more people wear them. Young men are my principal customers, and some of them would as soon think of appearing in evening dress without their collars or cuffs as without their flowers. A young woman, too, nowadays, would think her escort strangely lacking in courtesy if he failed to provide her with an odorous collection for her corsage."

"Isn't it strange," said an old New-Yorker the other day, "how many people there are who have lived in New-York all of their lives and have never seen what are commonly known as the sights-that is, things that people from out of town coming to the city visit in their round of sight-seeing?" inquiry among a number of people who had lived in the city all their lives proved that the remark was true. A number had never been in the Produce Exchange tower, nor to Bedlow's Island; they ha never climbed up in Trinity Church steeple, been on top of the Washington Building; many had never been in the Museum of Art, and but few had visited the Museum of Natural History; and several were found who had lived in the city twenty-five or thirty years and had never crossed the Brooklyn They didn't any of them know why they had never visited any of these places, but the answer of nearly all of them was that they knew they could go there any time, and had kept putting it off from day to day till they found it more convenient to spare the time. "Did you ever notice," said a ticket agent on the elevated road the other day, "how many people when buying a ticket will stare at a great big sign reading 'Fare 5 Cents,' and then put down a nickel in the window and say 'Give me "one," ' and invariably emphasize the 'one'"

Unlike most Chicagoans, he really does find much to like about New-York, but he also sees a few subjects for criticism. among them our downtown restaurants. "We are away ahead of you in this matter," he said in discuss ing it, "you have lots of high-priced concerns, places where you can go and get a good luncheon for 80 cents or a dollar. But you are almost without the neat, attractive eating-houses that we have in Chicago. where you are served with just as good a bill of fare and just as fine a service for less than half the money Why there one can get an excellent luncheon, firstclass in every respect, for from 25 to 40 cents. Here you would pay a dollar for it. I wonder your business men don't rebel against it. But I suppose they are all rich and don't care."

Public dinners are becoming the rage. Chamber of Commerce, the Spelfbinders, the Repub organizations have had dinners, and now comes the announcement that the Tariff League will give one at beimonico's on January 17. MRS. LANGTRY AS A COMMERCIAL FACTOR. While certain manufacturers of and dealers in toilet articles have reaped much benefit from Mrs. Langtry's use of their commodities, yet she has proven a detriment to some branches of industry by her disregard of pending styles. Harriet Hubbard Ayer and Pear can well afford to pay liberally for her autograph, but Mrs. C. Thompson, of Fifth-ave., will always regard Mrs. Langtry as the cause of her financial distress. In the affidavit attached to her schedules filed in the Court of Common Pleas, Mrs. Thompson, who was a " manufacturer, manipulator and dealer in humahair goods," says that her "business has depended entirely upon the decree of fashion until the advenof Mrs. Langtry, with her own original method of dressing her own original and natural hair," previo to which time "her business was of the best," immediately upon Mrs. Langury's becoming a factor, she continues, "my trade began to decline. Ladies perforce, found it necessary to make the most of what nature had provided, and society no longer demanded that ladies should appear with an exuberant head of hair. Consequently the demand for false or purchased hair declined and the stock of waves bangs, etc., which I had on hand has become almost worthless."

THE PICTURES LIKELY TO MAKE A LONG STAY The Sunday exhibitions of the Verestchagin collection of paintings and curiosities at the American Art Gal its have been exceptionally successful, and will be stinued until further notice. The week-day exhibitions leries have been exceptionally successful, and will be continued until further notice. The week-day exhibitions have also been largely profitable, and it now seems likely that the stay of M. Verestchagin's work will be extended to a point considerably beyond the period at first intended. The collection was first brought to the attention of the Art Association by Frank Millet, the artist, who so often reiterated its value that a special messenger was sent abroad to negotiate for the exhibition in America. M. Verestchagin himself was both to cross the sea, but the inducements offered by the Art Association finally overcame his objections, and the en-Association finally overcame his objections, and the en-terprise was undertaken. All the heavy expenses were borne by the association.

TAKING A SLIGHT ADVANTAGE OF THE COLONEL. From The Gontexuma (Ga.) Record.

The boys tell some good ones on Colonel Dupree. During the late campaign for Senator he made a thorough canvass of the country, and was so much in the habit of bowing to passers by in the road that his borse contracted the habit of his master, and never failed to bow when he met anybody in the road. Passing Slaughter Hill's farm, he saw him in the field ploughing with an ox. He alighted and approached the farmer and began talking. Hill said approached the farmer and began talking. HAGGIS AT DELMONICO'S.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE ST. ANDREW'S SO-CIETY.

PRAISES FOR THE LAND O' CAKES, ITS BONNIE LASSES AND ITS HONEST MEN.

Last night the one-hundred-and-thirty-second anniversary of St. Andrew's Society of the State applied, but although considered a remarkable affair of New-York was celebrated by a dinner at Delmonico's. The great dining hall was crowded to overflowing with members and guests of the society. The shield of Scotland and the picture and banners of St. Andrew were on the walls. The speaking related chiefly to the virtues of Scotsmen at home and abroad. William Cleland, the piper who has played for the society for more than thirty years, filled the hall with the sounds that thrill the Scot and chill the Englishman. An orchestra played Scottish airs in a strictly American but enjoyable style. Sprigs of heather were worn for boutonieres. Caledonia's stern and wild thistle was also to be seen here and there The haggis, 'reekin' rich," was ushered in from Delmonico's kitchen with minstrelsy as weird and vociferous honors as enthusiastic as ever welcomed it on its native heath. Bryce Gray presided over a company which included Andrew Carnegie, F. B. Thurber, the Rev. Dr. William Ormiston, D. Macgregor Crerar, the genial assistant secretary of the society; Recorder Smyth, Judge Van Hoesen, J. H. genial Herts, Deles McCurdy, Marcus Ward, jr., of Belfast; Almon Goodwin, John D. Robinson, John T. Cuming, George Tod, William Stewart Tod, J. Kennedy Tod, David McClure, of St. Patrick's Society; Cornelius N. Bliss, of the New-England Society; the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie, Consul Robert Hoare, James Duncan Smith, S. S. C., of Edinburgh; the Reverend George Sutherland, of Sydney, Australia; Consul-General W. Lane Booker, E. F. Beddall, of the St. George Society; Stuyvesant Fish, of the St. Nicholas Society; Chief William Hogg, of the Caledonian Club; John Sinclair, James Callender, Jams Callender, jr., George Callender, Mayor Turney, of Nottingham, England; Poultney Bigelow, Samuel Elliott, William Wood and Ewen MacIntyre.

Grace was said by the Rev. Dr. Ormiston, and Mr. Sutherland rendered thanks. Then the chairman reveiwed with satisfaction the work of the society, whose motto is "Relieve the Distressed." Toward the end of his able speech he made an allusion to the question of Home Rule in Scotland. That, he thought, had been settled at Bannockburn in 1314, and again when Scotland annexed England and gave her King James the VI. and I. But if a new Home Rule measure could make Scotland happier and more fortunate than she is now, he would heartily favor it.

The toasts of "The Day and a' Wha Honor It," The Queen" and "The President of the United States" were drunk in a way that showed that New-York Scotsmen are faithful to the first, well disposed to the second, and true and loyal to the third.

John Reid replied for "The Land o' Cakes" in a way that did credit to it and to himself and his "brither Scots." He lauded out meal in all its forms, from "parritch" to haggis. He praised the quality of the men that were reared on it, and with eloquence he alluded to the love which all Scotchmen in this country, good citizens as they are the state of their birth. Quoting are, bear to the land of their birth. Quoting Robert Louis Stevenson he remarked: "A man in these days belongs to many countries, but the old land is the true love; the others are but pleas-and infidelities!"

General Horace Porter proved an equally good spokesman for "The land we live in." He told some first class stories illustrative of the American Scotch some first class stories illustrative of the American Scot. Among them was a reminiscence of a Scotch minister in this city, who, during the High License discussion, asked an Albany Senator: "How about your liquor bill hast year?" and was met with the interrogative reply: "Mine was unusually large, Doctor; how was yours?" An unusually large, Doctor; how was yours?" An unusually large, number of Scots had fled from their native land last year, General Porer said, and that was explained by the fact that Andrew Carnegie had got to playing the bagpipes. (Laughter).

Mayor Hewitt, on the ground of a pressure of public duties, apologized for not being able to be tresent to respond for "The State and City of New-York," and Chauncey M. Depew's accident prevented his attendance. So Recorder Smyth filled the gap on the spur of the moment, and filled it well. A statement that in the eight years of his performance of the judicial functions only two native Scotsmen had been brought before him was much applanted.

PATHER MALONE'S LETTER. To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: In Father Malone's letter, which he says he sent to the Pope, and a copy of which he publishes in to-day's issue of The Tribune, he says: "Dr. McGlynn descrees well of the Church because of the refleence and reserve he has practised and the for bearance he has shown under the most trying cir-cumstances." It is disputed whether Father Malone meant to be very ironical, or that he did not keep track of the speeches of the "universal favorite" acid the best known priest in America." It is true that the so-called letter to the Pope is now a bit of ancient history and might be said to have been written long ago. But the writer says in his commonication: "The sentiments I expressed I hold to-day." AN OLD TRIBUNE READER. New-York, Nov. 30, 1888.

LIGHTING BAILWAY CARS WITH GAS, From The Albany Argus.

From The Albany Argus.

The West Shore passenger coaches are provided with an attachment of the use of which probably ninety-nine passengers out of every one hundred are ignorant. It is a cylinder of boiler from about six feet in length by one in diameter, and looks very much like one of the cylinders used to hold the gas of an oxyhydrogen light. It is fastened in plain sight under the floor of the car about midway between the trucks, the position usually occupied by the air charber connected with the air brakes. I chanced to notice one of the boiler-like attachments a day or two ago as a West shore train was being made up, and being of an inquiring turn of mind for the moment, I asked one of the train hands its use. It is nothing less than a small gasometer used for supplying the burners on the train. No oil is burned on the West Shore cars, each leach being fitted with gas burners and carrying its own supply of gas. The tranks will hold gas enough to supply a train for an ordinary run, but they can be replenished at any city along the road.

OLD COMRADES MEET.

GRAND ARMY MEN RECEIVE THEIR CHIEF.

A LOVING TRIBUTE TO GENERAL SHERMAN-THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF SAYS THERE CAN BE BUT ONE GRAND ARMY.

The reception tendered to Major William Warner the Commander in Chlof of the Grand Army of the Republic, by Lafayette Post, No. 140, last evening, was attended by many of the leading members of the or ganization in this city and vicinity and was a brilliant affair. The headquarters of the Post, in Masoni Hall, Sixth-ave. and Twenty-third-st., were gayly dec orated with National emblems and were crowded wher the ceremonies began. Among those present we General N. M. Curtis, Department Commander New-York; General Horatio C. King, General H. A Parnum, Past Department Commander John of Albany; Dr. John Medical Director of the Depa Palmer, the Departmen Luck, of New-Jersey, Commander Floyd Clarkson, Vice-Com mander John Hamilton, Junior Vice-Commander William Lee Darling, Department Commander Horn, of Connecticut, Colonel John W. Jacobus, Adjutant T. W. Greig, Quartermaster William Mitchell, General Cyrus Bussey, Major George F. Edgar, Major H. F Herkner, L. L. S. Clearman, L. C. Brackett, R. L. Saulsbury, Officer of the Day, John H. Cook, Past Department Commander James Frazer, General N W. Day, General Charles A. Collis and Colonel Ell Parker. The Comander-in-Chief on presenting himself was received with the usual ceremonies and conducted to his seat beside Commander Clarkson, who in a few well-chosen words, extended to him a cordial welcome. On rising to reply Major Warner was received with cheers. In the course of a stirring address he said: Scenes like this demonstrate that the score and three years that have elapsed since Appomattox have no weakened one jot or tittle of the silver cords of comrade ship that bind us one to another. The reason for that comradeship has been described in upt words by the greatest of living soldiers, our comrade, William T. Sherman. (Applause.) "Brothers," he says, "reared under the same roof love each other, but a day, a week, a year of war comradship in the same company begets a kno edge of character not possible einewhere. In poace we must accept a man on his word. Not so in war; the truth is then revealed, as it were by the lightning's flash. In the twinkling of an eye we segregate the true from the false, the brave from the timid, the earnest from the doubtful. The ties thus formed draw us cleser to our old leader—our hearts go out to him in his great bereavement. The tear-dimmed eye, the sorrowing hearts of his comrades from sea to sea, tell how they love him. Their prayer is that in this, the hour of his supreme affliction, the patriot's God may gently lead him.

. . To hasten the glad coming time when the rights of an American citizen shall be revered at home and compel respect abroad, the Grand Army of the Republic compet respect to the Matton; its membership is the Nation's roll of honor. The four hundred thousand old soldiers saffors who have enlisted under its banner are found in every church, every party and every walk of life, from the humblest to the highest. Its platform is broad enough for every good citizen who can present an honorable discharge from the Union Army or Navy to stand upon; it guarantees to the humblest member the largest liberty in partisan and tarian questions

It neither gives nor denies favors to a comrade because he belongs to this or that party, or because he is a Catholic, a Protestant or a Jew. Its platform is so broad that there is and can be but one Grand Army of the Republic. (Prolonged applause.)

Letters of regret were read from General Sherman. General Horace Porter, General H. W. Slocum and General Cyrus Bussey offered a resolution instructing the secretary to express sincere syn pathy for General Sherman in his bereavement. all present had shaken hands with the commander-inchief, the entire party adjourned to the dining-hall, where rations were served.

WHAT ACTORS AND MANAGERS ARE DOING.

The manager of "The Fugitive," a melodrama no playing through the New-England circuit, has adopted a placard with the words " Back Shortly" as an advertising medium, the words having some trifling im portance in the dialogue of the piece. The card is tacked up on office doors, and in some places has created a great deal of confusion. So much complaint as made that the authorities warned the manager to desist circulating the cards under penalty of fine. One man even threatened to sue the management, as it estranged him and a cilent, with whom he had an important engagement, and who had come a long way see him. There was no end of trouble and talk but it "boomed" the show in splendid style. Thanksgiving Day saw several records of good business at theatres in this country broken. The largest house in any city, not even excepting New-York, was the one which witnessed a performance of the Howard Athenaeum Specialty Company at the Boston Theatre The receipts for the evening were $2,680 25, and for the matinee $1,804 75, making a total for the day of 84,294. This was at regular prices, too. Theatre, in Chicago, also broke its own and the general Western record. In the evening $1,554 was taken in and at the matinee $1,158. The evening's receipts were just one dollar in excess of the theatro's best previous attendance, which was drawn by Frohman's " The Wife" company last summer. S. W. Lynca telegraphed from New-London yesterday that Fanny Aymar Matthews's play of "Washington Life" was produced at Pawtucket the evening before with marked success.

Mrs. John McLaughlin, widow of the associate pub lisher of "The Philadelphia Times," made her debut on the stage last Monday night in "The School for Scandal," which was presented at the West Philadelphia Drawing Room, under the direction of George Holland. One moment, messicurs directors of the Exposition's The people cannot do without Mr. Cappa. He is an institution. It is no secret that Augusta is in low with Cappa. He does not conceal his affection for Augusta.

Augusta.

The finest music yet given in the South, and we do not except the Mexican Band with its two leaders in New-Orleans, is this orchestration of the 7th Regiment Band.

Let the racers come to the front, and the firework-ioom up; let the charlots wheel about the course, and the balloon swing into the heavens; but by all means and above everything, let us retain the ballon of Signor Cappa, which, like Aaron's rod, swallows up all other rods.

LEARNING TO BE HEALTHY.

VIGOROUS MEN RATHER THAN ATHLETES. A MEETING OF THE ASSOCIATION FOR THE AD-

VANCEMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION. The American Association for the Advancement of Physical Education held its fourth annual meeting yesterday at the Borkeley Lyceum, No. 19 West Forty-This association includes many of the foremost directors of gymnasiums, prominent writers and authorities on physical education and others in terested in the subject. It has considerably over two hundred members and many new ones were elected yesterday. The gathering yesterday, as the president, William Blaikle, author of "How to Get Strong," said, was a representative one. About sixty well-known people were present, including many comen, who are working to promote physical education among their sex. Mr. Blakte, in outlining the objects of the associaion, said they were to teach people how to become icalthy, strong and vigorous, rather than athletes or mants. He noted the deterioration in physical trength of Americans and explained it by saying that men nowadays employ only the muscles which they need in their occupation. Artificial means must be employed to develop and strengthen mankind, and this association, athlefic clubs, gymnasiums, armories, etc., constitute the machinery to do this training in the almost new field of physical culture.

OFFERING A MILLION FOR HEALTH. Mr. Blaikle said that one result of lack of exer-ise was nervous exhaustion. "I am told," said he, that a man in this city who is worth $200,000,000. and whose wife is now dying, recently offered $1,000,-000 to any doctor who could cure him of the nervous exhaustion from which he suffers. Ah! there would no need of a doctor for this if he had taken 'unhurried muscular exercise.' That is the sure cure for nervous exhaustion. We can get the body into such a condition as not to admit disease. The robust We can get the body into rish laborer, working in the trench, does not get malaria. We want to get at the indoor boys and girls who are in a plastic state; we want to aim at heir weak physical points, and teach them how to get health and keep it."

Dr. J. Gardner Smith, of this city, read a carefully prepared paper on the "Use of the Sphygmograph in the Physical Examination of Gymnastic Workers and Others." This is an instrument for indicating the haracter of the pulse as to the force and extent of ts undulations. The Doctor is a strong believer in its use, and unprejudiced listeners gathered the furpression that Dr. Smith's paper was levelled at incompetent instructors in gymnasiums who don't study their students, let them work as they want to, and are thus responsible for the heart troubles with which some become afflicted. Training should be gradually increased, directors should study their charges, and should receive enough pay to enable them to give their whole time to their work. The gymnasiums of the universities are being placed in the hands of the medical profession which will build up strong and vigorous men instead of athletes. GOOD WORK UPON CRIMINALS.

Dr. H. D. Wey, of the Elmira Reformatory, read an interesting paper, giving his experience in training physically a class of criminal dullards. He put a ozen young men, of limited intelligence and perverted morals, through a course of physical exercise gave them a Turkish-bath treatment and a special diet. This treatment caused stimulation of their physical powers which led to increased cerebration. The result demonstrated the fact that the law of mutual dependence of body and mind should not be overlooked, and the Doctor advocated that the mos improved methods should be employed in the treatnent of criminals. Three of this class improved ufficiently morally and intellectually to be release in the reformatory, when otherwise they might have named there a long time. A fourth was paroled there was an encouraging advance in the cases of other members of the class.

Dr. Edward Hitchcock, of Amherst College; Dr. John S. White, of the Berkeley School, and Dr. Mary Taylor Eissell, of this city, also read papers. Mr. Blaikle was re-elected president; Dr. D. A. Sargent, of Harvard, Dr. H. M. Starkloff, of the North American Turnerbund, and Miss C. C. Laid, vice-presidents; G. W. Scaror, secretary; Dr. W. G. Anderson, treasurer; Dr. E. P. Thwing, Luther Gulick and Dr. Edward Hitchcock, the council.

TO OPEN THE NEW PLAYERS CLUB HOUSE.

THE GIFT OF EDWIN BOOTH-FORMING A FINE LIBRARY-PECULIARITIES OF THE

CONSTITUTION. The new home of the Players' Club, in Gramercy Park, will be taken possession of on New Year's eve. The occasion will also mark the real beginning of the club's career. The ground and the building are the gift of Edwin Booth, and cost $150,000, including furniture and decorations. Other interested people have also presented the club with a handsome library of nearly 2,000 volumes, besides over 200 theatrical portraits and a large number of valuable relics from the new famous collections of Booth, Barrett and Daly. the club proposes to make a feature of the library, and has engaged a competent librarian to compile from all the various works on the stage a complete history of the drama in America for publication. The clubrooms will be made a gathering-place for American actors, but will not be confined to them exclusively. Prominent men in all kindred professions and also distinguished patrons of the drama will be admitted to membership, though the number will be limited to 250 all told. One of the provisions in the consti-tution is that the club shall be a private one in the strictest sense of the word, and that no semi-public dinners shall be given in honor of any one. Another peculiar feature of the constitution is a stipulation that the governing body of directors shall be selfperpetuating; that is, the directors are empowered to fill all vacancies made by death or resignation to fill all valances made by leads of registrons. The majority of the board, however, is to be always connected in some way with the theatrical profession. The board now consists of Edwin Booth, president; Augustin Daly, vice president; William Bispham, theaster; Laurence Haton, Scretary; Lawrence Barrett, Joseph Jefferson, A. M. Palmer, Harry Edwards and E. E. Benedict.

John P. Swasey tells of an old Democrat in Canton whose sublime faith in "the man of destiny" enables him to feel perfectly happy while his Democratic friends are going about with long faces.

"Well. Uncle Rastus, Harrison's elected," somebody said to him, one day last week.

"Tath't so-vou wait!" said he.

"But every Northern State, except two, has gone for Harrison."

"You just wait! Cleveland knows what he's about. He'll veto every cussed one of 'em."
